OFFICE OF THE TRIBUNE, New York, May 16, 1865.

Behold the Difference.

The Lowery outlaws of North Parolina because of their color, we presume, excite no interest in the breast of the charming administration. Murders and robberies are constantly perpetrated by the villains, and yet Colonel Shannon and other peaceable clitzens of Mississippl, and others of like character in South Carolina, utterly incapable of the commission of crime, are constantly seized and incarcerated by the dirty minious of the despotic President. A beastly despot reigns, American States, and yet there are those who hesitate upon quibbles of partisanship when it is proposed to support Horace Greeley, whose patriotism is unquestioned, in preference to the whiskyhead of the White House.
